Video	Azeri	The traditional Azerbaijani wedding wish serves as the title to this film and appears to be just a flowery ritual formula. Yet the colorful ethnographic scenes reveal a tragedy that has lasted for ages. In this patriarchal society, girls are unwanted and 'useless'. In the past, new-born girls were often simply killed; yet, since the development of ultrasound, women have been compelled to seek abortions. Such an attitude towards women occasionally results in terrible family tragedies, one of which shook Azerbaijan a few years ago.	Artist:	Picture

Video	English	Episodes 1-12 (3 DVDs; item not to be split up): For thousands of years, the fabled Silk Road, as traveled by Marco Polo, was the link between the people of Europe and the vast riches of mysterious China. Spanning the deserts, grasslands, and seas between Istanbul and the major cities of China, the Silk Road witnessed an ongoing parade of goods and traders, carrying with them their art, religion, and culture. The impact of the Silk Road is immeasurable—giants such as Alexander the Great and tyrants such as Genghis Khan created our world's history while striding along its path! Now, the Silk Road comes alive, in all its glorious colors, sounds, and historical drama, in an unparalleled documentary achievement. The first co-production of China Central TV and the outside world, this series was ten years in the making, and produced at a cost exceeding $50 million. The entrancing soundtrack made the composer/performer Kitaro a worldwide star, and has sold millions of records to date. Silk Road has been aired to huge critical acclaim in over 25 countries, and remains to this day the highest rated documentary series in Japan's television history. Bonus features include: Interactive menus, chapter stops DVD-ROM features include: Photo gallery, press quotes	Artist:

Category

Video

Language:

English

Description:

From Mongolia to the Caspian Sea, the deserts of Turkestan are paradoxically some of the driest and some of the most fertile areas on earth. These are inland deserts, pierced by great rivers fed by mountain glaciers. Like the Nile of Egypt, these rivers carry live-giving water deep into arid lands. Oases along the rivers became the sites of great trading centers like Samarkand and Bokara, where for centuries the arts and sciences thrived. Successive invasions of Persians, Greeks, Arabs, and Mongols created a remarkable mingling of cultures which endures today. The last of the invaders were the Russians who ended the rule of the desert chieftains and created the Central Asian republics of the USSR.

English Version: Cyrillic Title

This film, which borders on a sociological study and/or ethnographic report, focuses on the lives of women in such closed and patriarchal communities as Azerbaijani villages in Georgia. Women are “invisible” here. For example you seldom see girl attend high school. Some have already been married off or abducted, others are engaged. It is considered improper for engaged girls to go to school. As to the outside world, it pays just as little attention to gender problems in Azerbaijani communities, as the latter is indifferent to the outside world.

Central Asia

Video	English	This program takes a close look at the surprising abundance of wildlife in the deserts of Central Asia, which cover an area larger than the whole of Western Europe. In the far south lies a nature reserve that is barren and waterless for most of the year, but which becomes ablaze with color in springtime, when melting snows bring poppy fields and pistachio groves to life. Vultures wheel over limestone canyons, desert monitors hunt fast breeding giant gerbils and Kulan, the wild asses of Central Asia, roam the savannah with fleet gazelles. Further north is the Karakum desert, Central Asia's equivalent of the Sahara. Here camels exist on tiny, tufted marsh sedges in the sand; sand boas hunt lizards, harvester ants keep subterranean granaries and, at sunset, the desert is filled with the ghostly cry of the eagle owl.	Artist:

Video	Finnish	Epic tale about two generations of men in a wealthy Finnish family, spanning from the 1960s all the way through the early 1990s. The father has achieved his position as director of the family business through marrying the heiress. Their eldest son Dani, hoped to succeed his father, succumbs to drugs while pursuing a career in rock music. Younger Riku grows up under the shadow of his more talented big brother and slowly drifts into the late 1980s, noticing then how many of his friends have managed to take advantage of the economic upswing.	Artist:	Picture

Taking place during the systemic, the film follows the last days of high school for a generation of youth. Carefree and bustling with a taste for adventure, the kids care more about their youthful adventures than the political events taking place around them, which remained a silent backdrop to youthful amorous adventures. Török was the first Hungarian filmmaker who made a feature film on the lives of youth in the early 90s, and the key authentications of the film were derived from his own experiences.

Description:

The theme of the delightful, easygoing, atmospheric Hungarian fantasy film could well be innocence, even of the action does take place in a bordello, so sweet and wholesome that it seems a place of pure beauty and Eden-like charm.

Kazakh poetic folk legend of the 16th century, tells about the period in the Kazakh nation when the people suffered from bloody feuds. In those times each province of the Kazakh nation had its own Khan and each tried to supersede the other. The love story of Tolegen, the brave warrior, and the beauty Zhibek ends tragically because of inter-family strife. Tolegen is foully murdered by Bekejan (the batyr, or nobleman, of the rival family), who earlier strived for the hand of Zhibek. Zhibek commits suicide after learning about the death of Tolegen.

Description:
The film "Angel in a Tubeteika" is a comedy produced by the famous Kazakh director Shaken Aimanov in 1968. The main character, Tailak, is a 28 year-old graduate student at the Geography department of the University and...still not married. His mother Tana, very tired of waiting for grandchildren from her youngest son, decides to find a bride for Tailak herself. She meets pretty girls in the street and just like that starts asking them if they want to get married. Aimanov also involved in his film many famous Kazakh singers, such as Bibigul Tulegenova and Ermek Srkebayev; and the beautiful city of Almaty becomes the main protagonist of the film.

Culled from three months of filming, Chastie presents unadorned images – a child who eats sour cream and then cried himself to sleep, a cow whose head gets stuck in a milk can, women baking bread in the earth – but the film's sequences are so breathtakingly photographed that they ultimately become a magnificently wrought ethnographic poem.

Video	Kazakh	“Shabandoz kyz” is a comedy made in the 1950s in the “Kazakhfilm” studio. The film is about love and social competition (соцсоревнование) between 2 kolkhozes. The protagonists Aidar and Galia are children of 2 kolkhoz directors. They love each other and their parents are happy to be relatives. But Aidar’s attempt to convince his father to buy a new breed of horse for their farm by using their inferior horses to compete in a national game almost costs him his love for Galia, who is also a daring horsewoman. The main idea of the film was to demonstrate the soviet system and some of its negative sides, such as bureaucracy, but it also represents many aspects of Kazakh traditions, including unique national dress, musical instruments, games, landscape, etc.	Artist:

Video	Kyrgyz	Adopted Son is an intelligently made film about a boy growing up in a village in Kyrgyzstan. The director, Aktan Abdykalykov, making his first feature film, shows us someone making the transition from childhood pranks to adult concerns. Shot primarily in black-and-white, but with patches of color, this film is simply, but not primitively, made. Abdykalykov pays attention to detail. Nature and natural processes preoccupy him and the villagers. Human life here is apparently life directly in nature. Swaying trees, a trapped bird, angry bees, a cow nursing a calf, a winding stream, the moon-- these images count for nearly as much as shots of human faces. Although the faces represent one of the film's strengths. They say a good deal--about labor, suffering, hope, friendship, love.	Artist:	Picture

Video	English	This short video will introduce you to the Kyrgyz people and natural scenic beauty. Karakol, formerly called Przhhevsk, is the ideal starting point for adventure vacations in Kyrgyzstan. From this small mile high city at the eastern end of Lake Issyk-Kul, you can explore the magnificent Tian Shan mountains, discover gentle alpine meadows and glacier-fed lakes, traverse remote gorges on horseback, and sip koomis with shepherds who maintain their nomadic lifestyle.	Artist:	Picture

	Video	Kyrgyz	A lyrical portrait of the 64-year old Janyl Alibekova, who lives in the border mountain village of Achy-Kaindy. Janyl continues the age-old tradition of making felt carpets into which she creatively incorporates national motifs. She never relied on anyone, least of all on the government and modern industrial technologies. As history would have it, after the break-up of the Soviet Union and in a period of general economic decline, Janyl became famous in Europe, a star of the magazine Elle, and the director of her own workshop. Yet she didn't change her lifestyle or her independent anti-patriarchal views	Prducer: Gender Montage

Description:

A Mongolian shepherd named Gombo and a Russian road builder named Sergei strike up a friendship that's as funny as it is unpredictable in this imaginative cross-cultural comedy. As the story opens, Gombo and his family live in the ways of their ancestors. Sooner or later, the wheels of progress are sure to spin toward them. But the ways of modern man may not be so alluring after all...

Video	Mongolian	The film's leitmotif is the deli - the traditional women's costume that not only gives a distinctive color to everyday life in Mongolia but also tells something about the women wearing it by its color and the way it is fashioned. One of the most common types of deli today is that sewn for women college graduates. Eighty percent of students are women. It would seem that such a statistic would represent positive change for women. However, Urchanimeg Nansalmaa presents the accounts of people from all levels of Mongolian society to show its reverse side. After graduating from college, women have only two paths open to them: returning to the steppe, becoming housewives and marrying livestock farmers or truck-drivers or, their diplomas notwithstanding, to earn their living as unskilled workers in Eastern Asian countries.	Artist:		Picture

Moon Heart is a shaman from Tuva, a very powerful healer who speaks to the stars. Tuva is a very ancient country of shamans and throat singers. It lies between the Siberian forests and Central Asian desert, marking the center of Asia. The high Sayan mountains protected Tuva, keeping it wild and pure. Tuvinian people love nature and live in harmony, fearing the rage of the powerful spirits of the mountain.

This report from a women's prison tells about a calamity that has recently appeared yet has already become widespread. Economic hardship and political chaos have led many Tajik women to become out of sheer necessity "live containers", smuggling heroin inside themselves. These women, who led ordinary lives yesterday, could not possibly be called criminals. The government recognizes this and occasionally amnesties those women who were caught with a relatively "small" (by Tajik standards) amount of drugs. Yet despite their sincere repentance and their joy at being liberated, there is no guarantee that life will not make them go down this terrible path again.

We witness the siege of Ganden Monastery as well as recent footage, shot under the constraints of government approval, showing the Tibetans striving to rebuild their homes and temples in the wake of China’s repression.”	Artist:

An instructional film in Modern Turkish - 2 disk set; Murat is a 29-year ol who has grown up in the US with his Turkish father and American mother. After his father's death, he finds a diary his father had written while he was a young man living in Istanbul. Murat decides to go to Turkey to retrace his father's steps and find out about a woman whose picture he finds inside the journal. The only clue to the woman's identity is the letter "S." Through a Turkish friend, who has returned to Istanbul from her studies in the US, Murat meets a woman who looks strangely similar to the woman in the photo. His journey leads him throughout Istanbul and eventually to southern Turkey. It is a journey through his father's past and a journey of self-discovery.

The only country to straddle two continents, Turkey offers a mysterious bridge between exotic Asian cultures and European modernity, perhaps best mirrored through its ancient cuisine, from stuffed foods such as Dolmas and Sarmas to its famous bread, Yufka. This fascinating documentary by food historian Bruce Kraig and his wife, director Jan Thompson, also visits carpet weavers, coppersmiths, and Whirling Dervishes.

Set in modern Turkey, "The Horse" is a compelling story of a father and son's struggle, against desperate poverty and hardship, to earn enough money so that the boy can go to school. Director Ali Ozgenturk's sensitive, complex interweaving of these characters' problems against the realistic background of poverty and desperation proved so unsettling that the Turkish government sent him to prison for making "The Horse".

Directed by filmmaker, Yilmaz Guney in France, where he fled after escaping from the Turkish jail where he'd been held as a political prisoner. "The Wall" is a piercing allegory of Turkish life. Amid the brutality visited upon the boys held in the Ankara prison – including beatings, rape, and starvation – Guney arrives at a political message of revolution as an act of hope.

Video	Turkish	In this deeply symbolic and visually lush film, as far as Tashbash is concerned, he's just a malcontent, a fairly ordinary hell-raiser who has gotten into trouble with the law in the past. Sure, he hates the village headman who is a toady to the region's oppressive landlord, and he dislikes the fact that everyone looks to the headman for help because they have no place else to turn, but he's just an ordinary guy and has no solutions for his fellow villagers. However, after one of them has a vision in which Tashbash is shown to be a manifestation of one of their more important local saints, the villagers unite as one in seeking him out for help with the upcoming visit of the landlord to collect rents which they can't pay. Their adulation and reverence is so persistent that eventually even Tashbash becomes a believer.	Artist:

Habiba is a Tabib, a Muslim healer, who belongs to the earliest Sufi "Chain of Mystic Transmission," a lineage of teachers whose main representative is the great master Bahaudin Nacksband. Uzbekistan is a dreamlike land of turquoise domes and minarets, a crossroad of western and eastern civilization along the Silk Road. A Muslim country: its spiritual tradition derives from the teachings of all the great religions on earth.

Shot while the filmmaker was conducting ethnographic fieldwork, this documentary is about personal survival and nationalist desire in the borderlands of the former Soviet Union. It chronicles that experiences of three Uighurs who live in the Republic of Kazakhstan. In the 1950s and 60s, during the turmoil following Mao's revolution, they fled their homeland in China's Xinjiang province for a new life in the USSR. Cut off from their homeland for over 20 years, they only re-established ties with their family and friends in Xinjiang in the mid-1980s. Since the fall of the Soviet Union, they have survived by working in the tenuous trade between Kazakhstan and their homeland, China. Caught between the politics of the Soviet Union, the Republic of Kazakhstan, and China, they dream of the establishment of a Uighur state in their homeland which will allow them to determine their own fate.
